Washington Letter.

(From our regular Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 '85

The week past has been especially fertile in the production of Cabinets for Mr. Cleveland, which, like ghosts, disappear into shadowy nothingness as the day grows rosy in the East. Some of these rumors are worth consideration, because they indicate the game being played by the coolest and clearest-headed members of the party. The most important matter last week was a talk told by a Senator to a number of Congress. The latter had enjoyed an exceptional degree of Hon. Samuel J. Tilden's confidence for ten years. Mr. Tilden is reported by this gentleman as expressing himself with unusual frankness and earnestness upon the appointment of a gentleman from New York. "Among the Democrats pure and simple in New York," said Mr. Tilden, "I could not select, for they have all been true. You know," continued the Sage of Greystone, "that last week some very important money friends of Governor Cleveland indicated to him (Cleveland) that Mr. Bayard's democratic and social record being of the highest possible, as Bayard was sound on the financial question when he, McDonald, and Eaton were about the only faithful three left in the United States Senate, and that," said Mr. Tilden, rising as he spoke, "the country could have at the head of its most important bureau no truer Democrat or more courtly gentleman than Thomas Francis Bayard." My informant then proceeded to tell me (however as it were) that the real trouble in New York was not that there was nobody to take the Treasury Department, but the difficulty of selecting who should have it—the difficulty being that if any prominent man was selected, why his friends would have all the good things the Treasury would have to give away and the rest would have to be left; whereas Mr. Bayard had no clique of bankers to satisfy, and so everybody's chances will be equalized. This appeared to be such good sense that my rubicund-faced terrapin-eating friend was delighted with it. One thing may be put down as certain, which is that Mr. Tilden will, I believe, name the New York Cabinet officer.

"I will tell you," said Mr. Tilden, "who I should like to see represent New York in Mr. Cleveland's personal councils, and it is Gen. Francis C. Barlow, I have been asked, continued Mr. Tilden, after seeing a bottle of Burgundy of great age properly decanted, "who I would like in the Cabinet from New York, and I have invariably replied as I told you when we commenced to talk. But I have informed Governor Cleveland that of all others I would prefer Gen. Francis C. Barlow as Secretary of War, because he was a brilliant young soldier, and won his double stars by the most gallant courage, and because he has the courage of his opinions. Then he is a gentleman born."

Under Mr. Randall's program, this week will be devoted in the House to three appropriation bills, the post office, legislative and sundry civil. And other bills will follow, occupying the time to February 25th, or within a week of the end of the session and Congress. It is evident, therefore, that no general legislation is to be attempted further than that a few small bills may be squeezed through in odd moments and in the final flurry. Never, perhaps, has there been so barren a session.

Senator Palmer's first speech in the Senate, delivered on Friday, was also the first speech in favor of extending the right of suffrage to women ever delivered in Congress. Elizabeth Cady

Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and other leaders of the woman's suffrage movement, who listened to the speech, pronounced it the best that had ever been made on this particular subject, and immediately ordered several thousand copies for general distribution. Palmer was heartily congratulated by all the Senators who sympathized with the movement. There are about two dozen of them.

The preparation for the inauguration festivities are going on in good shape, and the prospect is that the new regime will be ushered in with becoming dignity. The committees have much to do yet, but they are taking hold of their work with vigor, and may be depended upon to fill their duties well. It is evident that an enormous throng of visitors will be attracted to the city by the inauguration, but the people of the District will try to stow away their national fellow-citizens comfortably.

The President will probably give his farewell public reception while the city is crowded with strangers who attend the dedication exercises of the Washington Monument. He will also give several private dinners at the White House before he turns the Executive Mansion over to his successor.

THE SUDAN.

While leading the last charge against the Egyptian position at Bir Ali, on Tuesday last General Erkli was killed. The position was ultimately captured, but at a cost of three officers and eight to 15 killed, and thirty-five men wounded. Major General Erkli, commanding the Egyptian force, had been killed during the battle.

GENERAL GORDON, the British General, was killed in the battle of Spottsylvania, and the command of the army fell to General Hancock. The percentage of officers killed during this expedition, has been much greater than usual, reaching as high as eight percent up to date. Official information still lacking, confirming the death of General Gordon, but there is very little scope left. The assault offered by Italy, has been declined by the English Government. It is said that the Mandate of War is a Mr. Veret, formerly a Captain in the French Army.

Reports have already been forwarded from Gibraltar to reinforce General Wolseley's force in Soudan, and other reinforcements will soon be sent from England. The English force is now composed of 15,000 men, and 15,000 horses.

General Wolseley has been appointed to the command of the Sudanese-Border expedition. General Fremantle will command the Coast, and General Graves will be Commander of naval forces.

RUGBY, TENN.

A CRY FOR HELP ANSWERED.

DR. HAINES' GOLDEN SPECIFIC,

A POSITIVE AND RADICAL CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS.

To the Wives, Mothers, and Sisters of Drinking Men:

It is in your hands to have the husband son, or brother from the awful disease of drunkenness. This Golden Specific can be administered without the knowledge of the patient. By simply placing it in coffee, tea, or in articles of food or drink, its presence will not be detected either by taste or smell, and after a few days

TAKING DRINK OF LIQUOR IS A PHYSICAL IMPOSSIBILITY.

Drunkenness is a disease, not a weakness. Primarily the appetite for alcoholic drinks is not natural, but a habit. When this habit is discontinued, the body becomes healthy again. Every nerve, tissue and pore of the body is but a finished wolf with a million mouths gnawing upon the system and craving for alcohol. Pledges, temperance lectures, dredging examinations, physical exercise, and all forms of abstinence are of no avail, because he has not the desire, but he is physically weak. He could as easily obtain from eating food after a famine with a hamper at his hand, as to deny his hungry system its awful craving for liquor.

THE SPECIFIC AND LIQUOR CAN NOT EXIST IN THE SYSTEM TOGETHER.

It would be amusing, were it not painful, to watch the man to whom the Specific has been given without his knowing it. At first, out of habit, and not realizing that the good work has been done, he will drink
